

PBS show goes green for another season

6:00 AM Thu, Apr 02, 2009 | Permalink |

Comments (0)

Posted by: Jennifer Dean

PBS show Curiosity Quest aired the first of 13 new episodes in its second season of "Curiosity Quest Goes Green" March 30. This episode will repeat Friday, April 3 at 6:30 p.m. Each week host Joel Greene will go on "green" quests dedicated to earth-friendly practices, exploring environmental innovations.

The television program, aimed at elementary and middle-school students, will highlight topics such as how electronics are recycled, how trash can become energy and how milk jugs are transformed into kids toys.

Special to The Press-Enterprise

"Curiosity Quest" host Joel Greene visits an exotic animal rescue facility in the new season of "Curiosity Quest Goes Green."

For each show, Greene selects a viewer submitted question or quest request and follows up. The 30 minute weekly episodes will run through June 22.

Some of the quest destinations will include Patagonia Clothing Manufacturer, an exotic animal rescue facility and a water treatment facility.

Episodes air Mondays at 7:30 p.m. on KVCR, Inland Empire channel 24, 25 or 26, repeating Friday at 6:30 p.m. In the Coachella Valley, "Curiosity Quest" airs Mondays at 7:30 p.m. on KVCR cable channel 9 and on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. on KVCR-2 satellite channel 18.

For more information go to www.curiosityquest.org